Elco juniors and seniors once again pitted their knowledge, quick recall and perhaps luck against each other this afternoon, in the second annual Library Club sponsored version of the "College Bowl."

Members of the senior team were: Maryann Shelhamer, captain; James Troutman, Pamela Barry and Kenneth Rittle.

The Junior panel included: Douglas Elliot, captain; Leonard Yingst, Marie Bomberger, and Cheryl Geib.

Mr. Donald Kugle served as moderator, and Mr. Ronald Paine and Mr. Franklin Bergman were the judges.

Two seniors received priceless pieces of mail this week — letters of acceptance from their choice college. They were: Saundra Daniels, Eastern Carolina State College, North Carolina; and P. Timothy Burkhart, Mansfield State college.

Members of the "Sigma '67" yearbook staff breathed a sigh of relief Monday, as they met their fourth and final deadline.

Mr. Harold Donley is the advisor.

Perhaps the main purpose of the senior large group instruction is to acquaint and familiarize the students with the world about them; the world they will enter June 6. This Tuesday, however, they were told about one of the facts of their own world, their world of school and learning — the Audio-Visual Program.

Mr. Walter Hess showed the seniors the school's closed circuit TV equipment, overhead projectors, transistor amplifier, tape recorders and carousel slide projector. Assisted by five members of the senior class, Gary Wells, Eric Blouch, Dennis Keener, Thomas Seubert and Kenneth Rittle, he demonstrated what can be done with the A-V materials, and how they can make the learning process an easier and more enjoyable one.

Many of the ELCO Medics (Future Nurses of America) learned Monday what to expect should they pursue their nursing career in the direction of khaki and the Army recruiting office.

Major Patricia Sylvestre, Army Nurse Corps stationed in Philadelphia, spoke and showed a film to the following ELCO girls at the Annville-Cleona High School: Marjorie Hottenstein, Alberta Kissinger, Betty Kupp, Kathleen Hickernell, Linda May, Barbara Kreiser, Louise Krall, Susan Kapp, Marie Kline, Sylvia Forry, Leah Firestein, Darlene Getz and Lois Zimmerman.

They were accompanied by Mrs. Robert Kercher, school nurse, and Mrs. Donald Gunden.

It will be on-the-spot experience for eight FNA members as they assist local doctors, school nurses, and other volunteers at the measles clinic to be held in the ELCO cafeteria, Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. The clinic is being sponsored by the medical society and the state health department.

The girls are: Susan Kapp, Sylvia Forry, Louise Krall, Leah Firestein, Linda May, Kathleen Hickernell, Darlene Getz and Alberta Kissinger.
